The next step is to take the case badges, press them into wood and paint them. I'm currently doing this with vinyl decals, but I think I will start with PVA and run with it. The graphics are coming along nicely. I have some internal pictures and I should have some work done for the badges by the weekend. There are a few things that I've discovered as I've been working on this computer. I've never really used a hammer. I had to figure out how to get my hands
