Get all versions of Wondershare Video Converter Ultimate below, The moment of truth has arrived for Renault, and on Tuesday the French manufacturer will announce its financial results for the third quarter of 2012. During this meeting, Renault will also be able to provide us with a better insight into its immediate future, and there's every chance that we'll get some more updates on the expected Renault-Nissan tie-up. The early part of 2012 was a disappointing one for Renault as it failed to post any profits. As a result, Renault's shares have taken a beating, and in the final quarter of 2011 it was down over 10%, reaching a 7-year low. However, the French manufacturer's chief financial officer Michel Exito said that it has a lot of good things to offer, and that it still has an opportunity to recover. "This is a very positive business environment, with volumes up, with strong brands and with the desire to grow by having more facilities," he said. "It will be key for us to succeed. We have a very solid base from where to grow." At the moment Renault is just the fifth largest car manufacturer in the world, with its sales volume just a fraction of that of Japanese rivals Toyota, Honda, Nissan and Ford. However, it
